at 0400 on Sunday 31 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy and cold, with some rain and snow.

Today:
A bright, frosty and icy start. Winds increase as cloud and rain move in across the south and west, becoming snow in places but also more fragmented and lighter as it progresses inland. The north and east remain largely dry. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tonight:
Rather cloudy overnight. Further showers, mainly in the south and west where they will fall as rain along coasts, but possibly giving some snow further inland. Some frost and ice. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Monday:
A cloudy day on Monday, with a little patchy light rain or snow. Cold, with light winds. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Strong winds and spells of rain, sleet and snow on Tuesday. Some brighter, showery weather later. Bright and largely dry Wednesday. Showers, possibly wintry, return Thursday. Risk of ice throughout.
